1	On a personal level, I tend not to talk about politics because it tends to be a very sensitive subject and most people have a hard time being open to opposing opinions. It's taken very personal.	11/17/2016 2:52 PM
2	calmly	11/17/2016 11:24 AM
3	Haven't seen one	11/17/2016 10:58 AM
4	I find that alot of people were talking about Hillary, but get offended if anyone brought up different views. I dont think it is fair that one persons opinion is that it is ok to talk about their beliefs, but get offended if we talk about our beleifs	11/17/2016 10:47 AM
5	Try to diffuse the situation. Agree to disagree.	11/17/2016 10:41 AM
6	Respectfully agree to disagree, walk away	11/17/2016 9:25 AM
7	I personally do not speak of politics in the work place. However, I would if there were debates occurring because I feel strongly about the candidate I stand by.	11/17/2016 9:13 AM
8	I say you know - I dont want to give my opinion as to where I stand - but I do agree or disagree - or I decide to walk away if it gets a little heated	11/17/2016 9:12 AM
9	Don't engage. If I disagree I just keep to myself and politely exit the conversation.	11/17/2016 9:10 AM
10	stay out of it	11/17/2016 9:05 AM
11	Most of us who were in the minority of opinion, just know to keep quiet unless we are sure we can safely discuss issues.	11/17/2016 9:02 AM
12	I have been seat with others with differnet veiws and I just state to each of them to not let others views/opinions cloud their own judgement.	11/17/2016 8:51 AM
13	It really has not been an issue	11/17/2016 8:49 AM
14	I haven't experienced any problems with this issue.	11/17/2016 8:46 AM
15	I do my very best to avoid conflict period.	11/17/2016 8:44 AM
16	I would kindly ask them to take it outside of work. We are at work to get our jobs done and not discuss politics.	11/17/2016 8:42 AM
17	Act like an adult we're not children	11/17/2016 8:40 AM
18	Ignore. Blind eyes and closed ears.	11/17/2016 8:40 AM
19	case by case	11/17/2016 8:40 AM
